Motifs rooted in pottery, tattoo and legends

Upon her return to Guam 1987 Monica D. Baza formed Baza Designs specializing in art cards, art bags, T-shirts, and fine art. Photos by Monica D. Baza.

Monica D. Baza discovered art at an early age, choosing to work with lino-block printing in high school when it was offered. She went on to cultivate her talent at the University of Guam and earn her Bachelor's degree in Fine Arts from Concordia University in Montreal, Canada.

Baza's work showcases the symbolism and simplicity of each subject, drawing from the ancient Chamorros' pictographs and Guam's natural picturesque scenes. Baza strives to encapsulate the feeling of the moment and communicates it through her designs and artwork. In addition to pictographs and picturesque scenes, Baza also immerses herself in motifs rooted in pottery, tattoo design, and Guam's legends striving for clarity and truth regarding Guam's history and origins.

GUAMPEDIA: YONA

Yona derives its name from the Chamorro word iyo-ña, meaning to possess something material, personal or spiritual. One of the village's long time landowners, Santiago Leon Guerrero Cruz, said many people admired the area for its bountiful coconut plantation, and visitors would frequently ask who owned the property. Residents of the area, which was then called As Misen, replied, "iyo-ña, meaning they owned it. Now the area and village is known as Yona.
